Traction Engines

The most common traction engine restoration projects include the replacement of fireboxes, re-staying, re-riveting and re-tubing the boiler. We always define a clear schedule of works and defects before beginning a project to ensure the quality of the rebuild and reduce hidden costs.

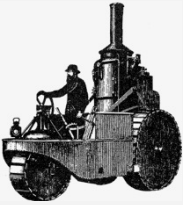

Vintage Shell Boilers

Repairs to vintage shell boilers, such as Lancashire and Cornish Mill Boilers, range from rivet replacements to the reclamation of plate surface wastage and, in some cases, to much larger shell and furnace replacements. We have carried out restoration projects for leading UK museums such as:

- ▶ Beamish
- ▶ Kew Bridge, London
- ▶ Museum of Science & Industry, Manchester

"Many thanks for getting the locomotive boiler repaired... all went smoothly and was a tribute to the professionalism of everyone involved. The locomotive was back in operation for Easter and has done about 15 days service so far this year."
